Dick,

My sense is that this should be a DDI function. I don't feel confident to make a recommendation as to where it ought to be done. OSWR certainly is a sensible candidate. Evan tells me that he would be pleased to try to find someone from the S&T who could occupy a DDI slot if you were able to put one up. (Given the number of vacancies in the DDI in the next year or so, assuming that we don't solve that problem overnight even though we'd like to, I would think that would be a desirable thing for you to do.) Overall, I think the DDI will perform a considerable service if they can take on the task of giving all of us a thoughtful, continuing basis for judgment about the threat to I don't think that either the DDO or the Office of Communications is the place to work this aspect of the problem.
